

270i Environmental Engineering & Technology

Patrick L. Brezonik

The major elements of these NSF Engineering activities—Environmental Engineering and Technology—are described. An overview of the program focus areas and some important accomplishments are presented that are of interest to research, process, and design engineers.