

29e Tutorial on Membrane Gas Separation

Benny D. Freeman

This presentation will discuss current applications of membrane-based gas separation as well as potential future applications. The theory of gas separations using polymers will be discussed, and the current state of understanding of the mechanisms and capabilities of polymer, inorganic, and polymer/inorganic hybrid materials will be outlined.