

181d Responsible Investing Perspectives on the Chemical Industry

William G. Russell

Responsible Investing has rapidly matured not only in the amount of money under management, but also in terms of the sophistication of research and analysis utilized by fund managers to assess and manage Sustainability driven risks. The Chemical and Energy Industrial Sectors are among the most affected by this development. Executives and Board Members must proactively engage these stakeholder concerns if they expect their companies to continue to be provided their privilege to operate. This presentation will review some of the major responsible investor initiatives and industry responses.
